There are 3 main options. 1) On the Desktop 2) On the Web 3) Export to a text file If you are on the desktop open your web browser of choice. Then go to the website You are taken to the main window where you will be presented with the 2 options above. If you are on the web go to the website and search for the desired URL. Make sure you press the "copy" button and then the "paste" button in the correct sequence. This will bring up the "paste" window. Paste the URL into the window and click "paste". The URL will be copied into your clipboard. If you want to export the URL to a text file use the "Export" button. There will be two files, one for the URL and one for the text. The text file will contain the URL with a line break to the left of the URL. The text file will be saved in your documents folder by default. You can change this location by clicking the "Change Location" button. 2.0.1 * Added the ability to Export to a.txt file. 2.0.0 * Simplified. Includes a menu option to paste the URL * Now checks if the selected location can be viewed by the user. If not, it will copy to the documents folder instead of the selected location. * Bug fixed when exporting the URL to a.txt file. * Submitted to Google CodeQ: Changing (setting) values of input using javascript Hi I am trying to change values of input box using javascript. You will also need your web browser (IE, Safari, Firefox, Opera, or Chrome) to be configured to use a web server, and to work with HTTP. A local hospital is now facing the daunting task of raising $7,500 to keep its doors open. For the first time in the history of the hospital, it can't pay its employees. "As a result, I have to rely on your prayers and support," said Ketchum hospital CEO John Smith. "It's too bad. We're all dedicated to what we do." According to the hospital, without the hospital's payroll, the hospital has to shut down some departments and cut some hours. "That's $5,000 to $7,000 a month. We're not going to be able to meet payroll and that's pretty critical to keeping the hospital open," Smith said. So, the hospital is hoping for donations from the community, from individuals and businesses. "We're still hoping we can raise the money by September," said Smith. "But we're not going to know until we get to that point. It would be the most challenging time we've had in the last 20 years." "It's not enough money to keep the doors open, we're going to have to go outside of the hospital," he said. Smith said that donations from the community and businesses have been generous over the
